

History Curriculum Overview (Transition Year 2023-24)

| Year | Autumn | Spring | Summer |
|--------------------|---|---|---|
| Early Years | This year, one of our Early Year’s curriculum ambitions is that ‘all children will experience ways of life and cultures outside of Sandridge village, both locally and beyond’. Throughout the year, opportunities to discuss important historical milestones (birthdays) and occasions are used as a stimulus to explore different areas of the curriculum. Every day the class gain more understanding of dates/the calendar to embed their learning about the past present and future. Key events in school are discussed in the context of a school year timeline and British Values are discussed alongside PSED. The Early Years classroom has small role play opportunities and resources for children to explore their own personal history and within their families. A diverse set of role play people are available which represent multiple generations. Throughout the year, books and stories represent different family histories for children to find similarities and differences with their own experience. Regular family news encourages children to share knowledge of and understanding of different generations within their families and their bespoke experiences. In the classroom, there is always a home corner role play area, both inside and outside, which enable children to explore babies and re-create family life. | | |
| Nursery | Nursery children are invited to talk and draw about their holiday/weekend news providing an opportunity to discuss friends and family from all generations-comparing their ages to themselves. The children in Nursery will act out a number of daily routines and begin to learn about sequences of time. | | |

| Reception | Reception children are invited to talk, draw and write about their holiday/weekend news providing an opportunity to discuss friends and family from all generations-comparing their ages to themselves. A key part of evidence for the children’s historical learning results from the sharing the contents of their ‘Marvellous Me Box’. This will go home at least once a year with each child, who then shares it with the class. The content includes children’s objects and photographs that are special to them. Many will bring in evidence of their families (naming different family members and their relationship) and when they were younger through photographs and special toys they have had since their birth. Occasionally children will bring in evidence of trips to significant historical sites or museums. Other children will ask questions about the historical aspects and all will discuss appropriately. | | |
